smashed windows at Wells Fargo's parent company's headquarters and chanted "shame on you" as they interrupted a daily meeting held by top executives. The protesters were among hundreds that gathered outside of the Wells Fargo

Center on Tuesday afternoon to rally for racial equality in the wake of a recent arrest of a black woman in Charlotte, North Carolina. Charlotte business leadership said they are "deeply troubled" by the arrest of Justine Greenup, but city leaders didn't call for charges to be brought against her because there wasn't "enough evidence" to support filing criminal charges. The Greenup, the new executive vice president of Wells Fargo's Charlotte, North Carolina, regional headquarters, was arrested Tuesday for allegedly assaulting her husband with a car. The incident occurred earlier this week in downtown Charlotte. Bank of America, the bank's parent company, said in a statement that it has "been deeply troubled" to see the arrest of Greenup, a black woman, and that it has also been "deeply troubled by the broader concerns about race and equality in this community." Protesters gathered outside of Bank of America and Wells Fargo headquarters in Charlotte to protest the recent arrest of an African-American woman. Stephen B. 79a2804d6b
