Who had a fatter 2018? If your sense of humour isn't good, the answer is probably you. The total number of calories consumed has risen 1.6 per cent in the past year, according to new data, and Canadians ate an average of 3,841 more calories than in 2012. Statistics Canada crunched the numbers in its annual Consumption and Expenditure Survey, or CES, which is the most comprehensive government look at the Canadian food and beverage market. The agency found the rate of population growth has been offset by a decline in per capita food consumption. And the number of overweight and obese Canadians has doubled in the past 20 years, rising from about 30 per cent to 62 per cent. But even with the prevalence of obesity, the average Canadian consumed the equivalent of 741 more calories in 2018. The reason has much to do with urbanization, with people spending more time in cities and denser neighbourhoods. The survey found that nearly half of Canadians were spending more than four hours a day in traffic, up from 45 per cent in 2012. The report also revealed that 63 per cent of Canadians were eating at home at least once a week, an increase from about 57 per cent in 2012. "That's a very important factor," says David McDonald, an Ontario nutritionist and senior scientist at the Centre for Food 2edc1e01e8

The video, an in-game incident from a game last week, had Raiders star quarterback Derek Carr taken out of the game and pointed to by Ray Lewis, a player in the Ravens' secondary, who said he had seen the play and saw it as a personal foul. CBS13's Greg Hanson said he was told by a Raiders source in LA that the NFL and team have decided to stand by the league's punishment. "The NFL did the right thing by suspending [Ray] Lewis and also benching [Vernon] Davis," the Raiders source said. "It was an awful call. Ray Lewis should be suspended for the rest of the year." The Raiders said in a statement to CBS13: "The Raiders have spoken to Ray Lewis. There is no doubt that he feels and saw an egregious act of unsportsmanlike conduct in the game. The NFL and Raiders have agreed to stand by the discipline imposed." Lewis also said "no" when asked if he had actually seen the play. "There is no doubt in my mind that if I had seen that, I would have reported it," Lewis said. "There is no doubt in my mind about what I saw." The NFL came out with a statement later Friday saying it had looked at the video and "affirmed Ray Lewis' ruling." That said, there was no doubt the league was all over the Raiders for the tone of their response to the NFL's punishment. One of the Raiders' ownership partners, Mark Davis, posted this note on the team's official website: "We will support the league
