Facts Terex The Westland Puma (serial number 3) is a ground-crawler crane produced since 1966 by the British company Westland, a subsidiary of the Canadian company Terex.It was the product of a four-year project involving a consortium of British and Canadian companies, which started in 1984.
Its development provided in-depth knowledge of previous Terex designs, and helped to make the Westland Puma one of the most popular cranes on the market, building to 84,636 units in total, with more than 11,300 of those units sold. The machine, designated as "WMS.8", had 3 major versions, with the most recent one being based on the WMS.12 model. . Propex Westland Puma TC 7.6. [PDF]
